VIOLENCE/GORE 6 - Two dead men are hanging in the background of a scene (we see them from the shoulders down); the man who killed them has blood on his hands. In theaters: May 7, 2010 On DVD or streaming: September 28, 2010 Cast: Don Cheadle, Gwyneth Paltrow, Mickey Rourke, Robert Downey Jr., Scarlett Johansson Director: Jon Favreau Studio: Paramount Pictures Genre: Action/Adventure Topics: Superheroes Character Strengths: Courage, Curiosity, Teamwork Run time: 126 minutes MPAA rating: PG-13 MPAA explanation: sequences of intense sci-fi action and violence, and some language Last updated: March 31, 2022 "One of the 50 Coolest Websites...they simply tell it like it is" - TIME Iron Man 2 | 2010 | PG-13 | - 4.6.5 Tony Stark (Robert Downey Jr.) returns as Iron Man to face a new nemesis (Mickey Rourke). A man is seen holding a bottle of alcohol and later takes a drink from it, a man opens a bottle of champagne and he and a woman drink some, several people in a bar scene are shown holding alcoholic beverages and drinking from them, a part drinks from a glass that could contain alcohol, we see wine poured in glasses on a table where two men sit, a man drinks a martini, people are shown drinking alcohol at another party, a man drinks alcohol in a movie, an Iron Man appears to be drunk in a party scene and stumbles a few times, people talk about a man being in a "vodka-fueled rage," and a man says, "I'm hung over." DISCUSSION TOPICS - Weapons manufacturing, espionage, nuclear weapons, super heroes, fear, peace, legacies, technology, privatizing peace, government, military industrial age, ego, greed, competitiveness, self-destructive behavior, narcissism. Luckily for director Jon Favreau (who enjoys his own role in the movie as Stark's bodyguard/chauffeur), all of the cast is up to par, even if the overall plot is a bit ridiculous (why didn't Howard Stark, played by Mad Men's John Slattery, just leave his son specific instructions to begin with?) and the game-changing revelation too easily discovered. Drinking, Drugs & Smoking Parents need to know that Iron Man 2 has even more explosions and action than Iron Man, but it also ups the snarky humor and sexual innuendo. We see a man's bare chest and abdomen in a few scenes. Security officers grab a man, a bag is placed over his head and he is thrown into the back of a van. People talk about a man being in a "vodka-fueled rage." A man speaks harshly to a robot and threatens to turn it into a wine rack, causing the robot to slump and appear sad. Everyone knows he's Iron Man, and he's helped the United States broker peace around the world. Is Rhodey more than a sidekick? Robert Downey Jr. is effortless as the playboy billionaire turned narcissistic superhero. Why do you think almost every superhero movie has at least one sequel? Several women are shown wearing tiny shorts and tops that reveal cleavage, bare abdomens and bare legs, and a few reveal a portion of their buttock cheeks while dancing on stage. Many drones surround two Iron Men, they all open fire, several drones are thrown, one is shot and splatters liquid on another, and a laser is used to cut many of the drones in half (we see pieces separating and falling to the ground). Who is on the right side of the argument? Be aware that while we do our best to avoid spoilers it is impossible to disguise all details and some may reveal crucial plot elements. Robert Downey Jr.'s Tony Stark, is still not the role model of power and responsibility that Peter Parker is, but he knows when and how to help. Discuss how he's different than other comic-book heroes like Peter Parker/Spider-Man and Bruce Wayne/Batman? ► A man and a woman kiss twice. Ivan Vanko is obviously a criminal, but is he justified in feeling wronged by the Stark family? Rhodey/ Rhodes (Don Cheadle). Also with Sam Rockwell, Samuel L. For a fun, fairly mindless action romp, Iron Man 2 is a snappy start to the summer movie season, but an action masterpiece like The Dark Knight it isn't. ► A man swings an energy whip at another man, the man dodges the whip repeatedly, which then strikes a nearby car, which is leaking gas, and it explodes (neither man is harmed). A man pokes another man in the chest on purpose when pinning on a medal. While Tony is fending off congressmen who want to force him to turn over the Iron Man suit to outfit the Armed Forces, he's also dealing with the fact that Palladium, the element that's keeping him alive, is slowly poisoning his blood unless he can find an alternative, less-toxic element. The villains, Rourke and Rockwell, are deliciously campy, and the more roles Rockwell gets, the better. Women wear low-cut tops and dresses that reveal cleavage in numerous scenes. After all of the controversy surrounding the dismissal of Terrence Howard, Don Cheadle seamlessly slipped into the best-friend role. A man charges up a device that creates a laser that cuts through a wall, door, etc., as he tries to position it. A man says "I wanna' take a dump in his front yard." LANGUAGE 5 - 1 mouthed F-word spoken but bleeped by a character playing a government official, 2 scatological terms, 6 anatomical terms, 3 mild obscenities, 8 religious exclamations. This title has: Tony Stark (Robert Downey Jr.) is back and more popular than ever in IRON MAN 2. A man tells a woman that, "He needs a slot, get him a slot..." (there are sexual undertones). A woman asks if the martini he is drinking is "dirty enough for him." A man compares a situation to prostitution or indentured servitude. A woman slams a man's head onto a desk and twists his arm while asking for information. ► A man and a woman fight in a boxing ring; the woman strikes the man, throws him to the mat, wraps her legs around his neck and pulls his arm before releasing him (he is not harmed). Families can talk about the immense popularity (and profitability) of comics-based movies like Iron Man 2 and superheroes. Scarlett Johansson's character is strong, but she's so objectified it's hard to think of her as a role model to young girls. Women wearing low-cut tops and dresses surround a man asking for autographs and offering him their telephone numbers in a few scenes. Directed by Jon Favreau. ► A drone aims its weapon at a young boy, the boy raises his hand, which has an Iron Man glowing device in its palm, and an Iron Man shoots the drone (it falls to the ground). Meanwhile, Tony goes into self-destruct mode thinking his days are numbered, naming Pepper Potts (Gwyneth Paltrow) CEO of his company and alienating his best friend Lt. Col. ► A man walks onto a racecar track, he opens his jumpsuit to reveal that his chest is covered with cables, and sparks and bolts of electricity melt away the rest of his outer clothing; he cracks what looks like an energy whip, striking a race car as it approaches him and causing it to flip and crash into another car, which also flips and rolls over, and two other cars flip in the air and explode into flames (one driver is shown with a bloody gash on his forehead). Realizing he can't save the world by himself, he enlists a friend (Don Cheadle) as a second Iron Man, while he also wrestles with his mortality and his feelings for long-time assistant Pepper Potts (Gwyneth Paltrow). Scarlett Johansson's SHIELD double agent Natalie Rushman/Natalia Romanoff is equal parts Jessica Rabbit and Catwoman (it's unclear who's side she's really on for half of the movie), and Paltrow continues to be Stark's loyal, long-suffering enabler and love-interest. ► We see a man's bare chest with a lighted device implanted in the middle, and he removes the device to replace a smoldering element. In the world of superheroes, Tony stands apart as a pretty selfish rich guy outside of his Iron Man persona, yet he demonstrates curiosity and courage. The two biggest concerns for parents are violence (while there's not much blood, there are plenty of bombs, weapons, and fights, as well as two men who are briefly shown hanging to death) and consumerism (several brands are featured again and again to the point that the movie seems like an expensive commercial for Audi, especially). ► A man speeds a car into another man and pins him against a fence (we see blood in his mouth); he then runs into him a few more times (we see more blood in his mouth), and the pinned man then cracks an energy whip, striking the car and cutting pieces off (the two people inside the car are uninjured). Ivan creates his own special suit and sets out to destroy Iron Man, garnering the attention of Stark's chief business competitor Justin Hammer (Sam Rockwell), who commissions Ivan to develop a line of Iron Man clones. ► Two Iron Men shoot an energy beam at each other causing a huge explosion, and a man wielding energy whips is thrown by the blast (we see him crumpled on the ground, with blood in his mouth). Why is teamwork an important character strength? It's the same perfect blend of actor and character that makes Johnny Depp the best part of the Pirates of the Caribbean movies. A man stumbles and appears to be ill in several scenes (we see discolored veins on his chest and neck). A man slams another man's head into a sink (we hear a crack and the man falls to the floor motionless). A man compares a situation to prostitution or indentured servitude. November 29, 2021 It is fine to watch with your kids but, from a film stand point it isn't great. A woman wears a skin-tight outfit in a number of scenes that reveals cleavage and the contours of her body. While we read all emails & try to reply we don't always manage to do so; be assured that we will not share your e-mail address. This franchise completely owes its popularity, unlike the '80s-'90s Batman series which kept changing its lead, to the irresistible charm of its star. Unfortunately, there's a dying Russian physicist who blames Tony and his visionary father Howard for his family's misfortune, so his dying wish to his son, Ivan Vanko (Mickey Rourke), is a cry for vengeance. A man has metal teeth and a large scar on his face. And what's up with sequels? A large explosion in a prison causes people in cells to yell and security details to deploy in force. Although there is only one climactic kiss, there are lots of double entendres and innuendo-filled jokes that may go over the heads of tweens and younger teens. Should weapons be portrayed as that shiny and cool? Tony Stark says he doesn't need a sidekick, but in the end, he does need Rhodey's help. A man remarks that, "You can always count on me to pleasure myself." A computerized voice remarks to a man that it is good to "See you in a video with your clothes on." A man says of a reporter, "You did quite a spread on him" and continues "...and you also wrote a story" (there are sexual undertones). Many drones chase an Iron Man through the air, they open fire, and he speeds away. A man's blood is tested in several scenes and is shown to be increasingly toxic. Two men spar in a boxing ring (no one is harmed). We welcome suggestions & criticisms -- and we will accept compliments too. ► A man punches another man in the stomach, and then twists his head breaking it (we hear a crack and a thud). ► We see several videos of demonstrations of weapons that depict malfunctions: A man in a mechanized suit falls over and shoots many people that are standing around him (we see blood splatter on the camera lens), and a man wearing a mechanized suit falls out of the sky and explodes on impact with the ground (people run and rubble rains down). Two Iron Men and many drones shoot at each other: the glass roof of an arena breaks and falls on people (we hear screaming, but do not see anyone harmed). What message does this send? A man shows numerous types of weapons and describes their capabilities. ► A man refers to the possibility of him having sex that night. MESSAGE - Almost everything is achievable with technology. A man wears a patch over his eye and has slash scars on his forehead and eyebrow. SUBSTANCE USE - A woman injects a man in the neck with something and a man seems to be drinking chlorophyll in numerous scenes. The parents' guide to what's in this movie. Our ratings and reviews are based on the theatrically-released versions of films; on video there are often Unrated, Special, Director's Cut or Extended versions, (usually accurately labelled but sometimes mislabeled) released that contain additional content, which we did not review. ► An Iron Man and a man with energy whips fight: they strike each other, shoot energy weapons at each other, they throw each other, and one lies on the ground with blood in his mouth and then spits blood at the other as he is dragged away by security officers. A man threatens a woman. ► A woman fights many men with martial arts moves, garrotes, tear gas, mace and taser discs. We are a totally independent website with no connections to political, religious or other groups & we neither solicit nor choose advertisers. Many drones explode causing buildings to fall and people run screaming. A very tattooed Rourke smears on the Russian accent and affected mannerisms a bit too thick, but then again, so does every super-villain. ► A man threatens another man and says, "I will tase you and watch you drool into the carpet." A man tells another man to "grab your crotch" before multiple explosions. We welcome suggestions & criticisms -- and we accept compliments too. Two Iron Men fight with punches and kicks and crash through glass: they then throw barbells and weights at each other, and shoot energy beams that cause an explosion that leaves one unconscious. How is their relationship different than the typical hero-sidekick dynamic? While drunk at a party, an Iron Man shoots several bottles and a watermelon that's thrown into the air and over a crowd of people. They just made the movie about to much they should've chosen between Stark being poisoned, Justin Hammer, or Whiplash. We've gone through several editorial changes since we started covering films in 1992 and older reviews are not as complete & accurate as recent ones; we plan to revisit and correct older reviews as resources and time permits. ► A man grabs a bird, it squawks, and he shoves it into a bag; another man takes two pillows and a pair of shoes from a man as a punishment. ► An Iron Man jumps from the back of a plane and flies among exploding fireworks; he then lands hard on the ground in an arena filled with people. Many drones fire rockets that strike the ground in the distance (we hear screaming). Jackson and Scarlett Johansson. Are weapons of war glamorized in the movie? ► An Iron Man tackles another Iron Man to the ground and shoots at him repeatedly. Become a member of our premium site for just $2/month & access advance reviews, without any ads, not a single one, ever. ► An Iron Man and many drones fly through the air while shooting at another Iron Man, and they cause a lot of property damage, explosions, etc. A woman acts flirtatiously with a man, and then serves him a subpoena. A man is shown wearing only underwear while seated in a jail cell (his bare chest, abdomen and legs are shown). A man fights with another man for an extended period with punches and kicks and head slamming; one bites the other on the ear (no gore is evident) and one eventually lies unconscious and the other has a bit of blood on his mouth. What do you think is the appeal of superhero flicks? (2:05) SEX/NUDITY 4 - Two men admire a woman as she enters a room: one man stares, and another woman tells him he's ogling and this is a sexual harassment lawsuit waiting to happen; the man searches online and finds photos of her posing in lingerie (we see her reclining and wearing a black lace bra, with cleavage and bare abdomen visible) and says, "I want one." ► A woman undresses in the back seat of a car -- we see her wearing a bra and her bare leg appears and she tells the driver of the car to watch the road when he swerves. A man who appears ill coughs and dies and another man grieves. ► A man wielding energy whips uses them to hold two Iron Men; the whips are wrapped around their throats, and they thrash and struggle to free themselves. We are a totally independent website with no connections to political, religious or other groups & we neither solicit nor choose advertisers. It was just to many conflicts happening. While we read all emails & try to reply we do not always manage to do so; be assured that we will not share your e-mail address.
